A Theatrical Sensation.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl," the big musical show that has created the greatest sensation among the stage-goers as the best musical comedy produced in years, will be presented at the Brooks on Wednesday, Nov. 20. Messrs. Askin-Singer company, now controlling the La Salle theatre productions, are offering to the public a better and higher class of musical comedies than the ordinary producing manager, who in the past has neglected to do this. The one night stands in many cases have not had the opportunity of seeing an all star cast in large musical successes. However, this is not the case with the Askin-Singer enterprises.

"The Time, the Place and the Girl" cast now feature many celebrities including Mr. John Young, Miss Estelle Jensen, of "Wizard of Oz" company and Pretty Peggy in "Peggy from Paris," Ellsworth Goodall and Irving Christian, formerly with "Habs in Toyland," and other large waterpieces, also Miss Jessie Hinton, C. M. Giffin, Theo. T. Rook, William Fitzsimmons, J. S. Kinslow, Bert Devlin, and others.

Tim Murphy.

Mr. Tim Murphy is this season appearing as Jim Johnstone in "Cyrus Townsend Brady's" "A Corner in Coffee." Mr. Owen Davis dramatized the story for Mr. Murphy, and it is said that while there are powerful dramatic situations, there is an abundance of comedy. Mr. Murphy is surrounded by a very capable company, including the popular Dorothy Sheridan and appearing at the Brooks Thursday and Friday evenings.

"A Doll's House."

The character of Nora in "A Doll's House," probably has done more to bring the average wife to a realization of the selfishness of man than any other play that ever has been written. Nora is a character peculiar to herself. In no other play is there a character like her, self sacrificing, ready to die for the man she loves, the man who made her a butterfly, a doll, yet who in a moment of disappointment leaves her more than she did in all the other years of her life. A woman who one moment is loving, motherly and kind, the next, hard, indifferent to her fate or her children's, such is the character Nora drew in "A Doll's House," in which Miss Jane Corcoran will appear at the Brooks in the part of Nora on Sunday next.

The resolutions passed by the Interstate Navigation association here has been passed up to the congress. It demands that the improvement of rivers and harbors be made one of the first national policies, and recommends that this be done to the extent of creating a new national bureau of public international improvements.

Its advocates are busy planning to check any progress that may be made by the opposition to the development of river navigation by the meeting called by Oklahoma City and other inland towns at Wichita for the purpose of "opposing the congressional appropriations for useless expenditures in river improvements." This is regarded by most of the delegates as a direct attempt to prevent improvement of the Arkansas and Missouri rivers, which would give Neosho water rates over Oklahoma City and Wichita. The members of the organizations supporting the "lakes to the gulf" waterway and the Missouri River improvement association are here for the purpose of getting the congress to back those propositions as strongly as possible before the national congress.

The delegation asking for the creation of the new state of Lincoln, from parts of Washington, Idaho and Montana are here and are very active. This is one of the most interesting questions before the congress.

WHAT MURRAY STANDS FOR

CANDIDATE FOR SPEAKER OF HOUSE STATES PLATFORM

DEMANDS OF PEOPLE EXPRESSED AT POLLS

And Putting Into Effect Provisions of the Constitution

Special to Daily Leader.

Durant, Okla., Nov. 19.—Hon. W. A. Durant, representative-elect from Bryan and Atoka counties, has received the following letter from Wm. H. Murray, president of the constitutional convention, stating that he would accept the caucus nomination for speaker of the house of the first legislature of Oklahoma:

Tishomingo, Okla., Nov. 18, 1907.

My Dear Durant:

Your favor of the 17th inst., in which you observed: "Many people are in doubt about your intention; you have never made public declaration that you will make the race for speaker of the house, or submit your name to the Democratic house caucus," is now before me. In response I have to say that, watching the trend of events since the election, and judging from the many letters received from members-elect (and others) unhesitatingly, pledging their support, I believe I shall be doing violence to public duty to decline such responsibility, however greatly do I dread a repetition of the arduous work—the many long and weary days and nights spent with my associates in framing the fundamental law. The same pressure of the "interests," the intrigues and subterfuges of the lobbyists, the attempted browbeating, the slanders of a subsidized horde of newspaper correspondents of a branch of the metropolitan press will be there to try the metal of every member, I grant you, but the officer who dares to treat them as they deserve, to be treated will be compelled to bear their direct attack and be bound by their sly, insidious villainy. Other editors and politicians, disappointed because refused endorsements for public office, will hang about his heels like famished wolves.

Do not be too sanguine because there seems to be little opposition; for me, a race before the legislature is not like running before the people. In such a contest every politician in the state will essay to have a word. Two elements will oppose me, to-wit: The politicians and the "interests"; the politicians are not for me; never have been, and I suppose never will be; but popular pressure invariably brings them around. The railroads and other "interests" will never "be good" until we have whipped them in the legislature and through all the courts of last resort in the land.

I stand for the election of Owen and Gore for the United States senate, the putting into effect the provisions of the constitution and redressing the pledges of the Democratic platform adopted at Oklahoma City, and all the demands of the people as expressed at the polls. As to the purchase of the segregated coal lands I am in favor of the state purchasing them only when the bargain is ratified by the people, and to that end I favor the legislature's submitting the question to them; when this is submitted I shall advocate the purchase, if the price is such as to make the state a safe and profitable investment.

Make it also clear that I will not make pledges of appointment or assignment on committees, though it results in my defeat. I will not be tied by private "pigs" which do not hinder the rewarding of merit and of men faithful to public trust, and oftentimes lead to defeat of wholesome laws. I could not do honor to a position gained by political trades and intrigues.

Our duty will be to enact a code of laws for Oklahoma, discarding all
